MANAGER'S COMMENTARY

General macroeconomic nervousness that had been building throughout the year finally translated to equity market volatility and weakness in August. Broad market losses of 4.5% were softened by the weakening Canadian dollar and by a rally from the lows in the last week of the month. Currency and commodity volatility continues, with both the Loonie and the price of oil touching their lowest levels in more than five years. Environmental sectors underperformed the broad market slightly, while the Greenchip GEF slightly outperformed.

There was more activity than normal in the Fund last month. Volatility provided opportunities to add to several positions, particularly in the solar space where indications continue to point to strong growth, tight supply, and expanding margins. All of our Chinese solar companies reported earnings in the quarter that exceeded expectations and all, with the exception of Canadian Solar, indicated that the outlook was for continued strength. We added to positions in Jinko and JA Solar, as well as renewing a position in US-based First Solar.

We re-established a position in Calgary-based Pure Technologies, a leader in specialized leak detection equipment. Finally, we decided to sell our shares in LED manufacturer CREE having lost confidence in the company's strategy and prospects following a meeting with the CFO.
