MANAGER'S COMMENTARY

Global stock markets rolled on in February, turning in a gain of approximately 4% in $CAD. Volatility has declined during the steady drift higher: the US benchmark S&P 500 index has gone more than 4 months without a decline of more than 1%; the longest such stretch since 1995.

Environmental sector performance, and that of the Greenchip Global Equity Fund, was in line with broader indexes for the month. Jinko Solar, the largest solar manufacturer in the world and also Greenchip's largest holding, was the first Chinese company to report and showed strong revenues and margins. The company was fairly optimistic about 2017 too. We see potential for better margins in the future, mostly from low cost manufacturers (largely Chinese), particularly those selling high efficiency modules. This is in contrast to the year-end 2016 earnings reports from American leaders SunPower and First Solar, both retrenching on weak domestic sales expectations for 2017.

We added one new name in February: Canadian biomaterials company Ecosynthetix. We have owned this name in the past, and reestablished a small position as it looks set to ramp up a new product line, a bio-based alternative to formaldehyde as a binding agent in wood products. Regulatory momentum is building against formaldehyde which is a proven carcinogen. Ecosynthetix already sells nearly $20m per year of its biopolymer product to replace petroleum based latex in paper coatings.

FUND PRICE (AS OF FEB 28, 2017): $13.03 (CLASS A), $13.79 (CLASS F), $15.42 (CLASS I)
